short explanation from the short explanation editor

hello,
i'm orange.
i'd like to take this opportunity to apologize for the chronic lateness of the acme comics turbine. this periodical was originally intended to be monthly in frequency ("hey!" we said, "we can do six pages every four weeks! no problem! hey!"), but we always seem to be running a month or two late. as a result, we formally declare that the acme comics turbine is hereafter a publication of irregular frequency (not to mention content), which will appear roughly once a month, but sometimes less often than that and not necessarily in chronological order. honk not thyself off; it gets better. where's the food?

shop cat's news

how you people can expect me to form sentences, let alone type, is beyond me. where's the food?
